TUESDAY, JULY 21ST, 1903.

FROM OTTAWA

July 14th, 1903.

Bulletin Correspondence.

The rumored resignation of Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways, has come as a startling surprise to parliament and no doubt, to the country. The rumor became current yesterday evening and it was not long before it was thought to be confirmed by the absence from the House for the past two days of the Minister. The cause which led to his resignation were only guessed at, but all agreed that it was a very serious matter, not only for the government, but for the country, coming at this particular time. Already the country is committed to one great railway project, the completion of the Canadian Northern to Edmonton, and is practically committed to the still greater scheme of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Although both projects, no doubt, have the general approval of the majority of the people, they are of such a gigantic nature and involve so many serious questions that the strongest and most united government might very well be overborne by their weight. That one of the very strongest men in the government, and the Minister of Railways and the man to whom is no doubt due in a very large degree the new and approved policy of dealing with railway questions in Canada as manifested in the case of these two schemes, should resign at the moment when his services and the prestige of his name were most needed can only be looked upon as little less than a catastrophe, or as liable to precipitate one. The circumstances surrounding the resignation of the Minister of Railways are entirely different from those connected with that of the ex-Minister of Public Works. No evidence of differences of opinion between Mr. Blair and his colleagues has ever been given, or if ever, certainly not by him. There have been rumors of such differences, but it was never suspected that mutual concessions would not be made so that the cabinet would stand united. It is believed that Mr. Blair's advanced views in regard to government control or ownership of railways have not been supported as he would wish by his colleagues, and that the breaking point was reached in the provision of the Grand Trunk Pacific agreement, whereby as reported the present intercolonial was to be paralleled between Quebec and Montreal by a shorter line controlled by the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is believed that he felt keenly the lack of support which he received from his colleagues in carrying through his cumbersome, intricate, but advanced and popular railway commission bill. No word has yet been spoken by himself or colleagues that takes a reason for his resignation, but there are points upon which, in the public mind, his action may have been measurably justified. There can be no accusation of disloyalty either to principle or to the colleague who told him, beyond the point that in the last resort he held morally to grounds, rather than loyalty to his colleagues.

The resignation of this Minister suddenly and unexpectedly that speculation is at fault as to what effect it will have upon the government or its policy. There is no doubt that the resignation of the ex-Minister of Public Works retarded for a time, if it did not prevent, a swing of the party towards high tariff. It is believed that the resignation of the Hon. Mr. Blair will not be a check to the principle of government control of railways, which it has been his chief effort to establish.

Elections in the Fall

Toronto News.

The News has learned from the most authoritative circles that a general election for the House of Commons will take place during the coming autumn probably in late October or early November. There have been rumors for some months back of such a course, but all so unobscure, that it was supposed to be a mere idle talk. The country may be viewed as a certainty, it will be somewhat that in the latter part of the year, when the government is likely to be in a position to carry out its policy, the government will have a strong chance of success in the coming year.

The machine for such a course are several. First, there is the educational work, by which a reduction of the vote may be held to give ground for a speedy dissolution of the House. Secondly, the continued prosperity of the country makes the time auspicious for an appeal to the people. Thirdly, the summer has been an unpropitious one.

Fourthly, the desire to have the country government, based on the government's policy with regard to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Finally, the general impression of the country which has been decided on may produce the present result of the House until September, because it will be necessary to clean up many odds and ends of business before dissolution. It may also mean the postponement of the provincial by-elections until after the federal contest. Or, there is perhaps a greater possibility of Mr. G. W. Ross taking the leadership of the Senate, and entering the Dominion government, in which case the by-elections would take place before he resigns the premiership.

THE POUND

Animals becoming a nuisance to any ratepayer or citizen residing within pound limits, it is that person's special privilege to take those animals to the pound keeper, and thereon a form to be furnished by said pound keeper to be filled out, stating the amount of damages or nuisance, the owner's name, if known, of the animals, and binding and obliging in writing to be reasonable for the cost and maintenance of the animal while in pound, the pound keeper to receive the same if in his option there is just cause for impounding the animal. At the pound-keeper's discretion he may insist on the offending party getting any person or in other words getting any person to go in bond for him. This is practically the law, and the citizens of this town should see that it is carried out. To allow or authorize boys to go around and gather cattle in the middle of the day and especially milking cows from their feeding grounds is an injustice and a criminal offense. The by-law specifying that animals shall not run at large within the town limits. The fine owner of the animal going to the pound and finding those charges laid against his animal shall forthwith pay the same and take the animal away. If he has grounds or sufficient reasons to believe that his animal has committed no damage, it shall be his privilege to enter suit to recover his animal free of charge and may claim damages on account of his animal being falsely impounded or his animal being over-treated.

Owners of cattle should see that their animals are placed within their own domicile at night or expect to find them in the pound the following morning.

Yours Very Respectfully,

JOHN R. BRENDON.

A ratepayer and one who keeps his cow in his yard at night.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN

Report.
Mr. J. M. Kelly says his son, E. R. Kelly who is at the Edmonton General Hospital, is in a fair way to recovery, and will soon be home.
Louis Garroa, formerly of Edmonton, is about to open up a tin-smith's shop in the A. T. Chambers & Co. hardware store at the back.
George La Page, a prisoner sentenced on the 29th of June to serve three months for assaulting his uncle with a shotgun, escaped from the Barracks yesterday at noon. La Page was made a prisoner at large some time ago and was given the work of stableman. His work took him to the stables directly after dinner, and while the constables were at dinner he escaped. His absence was not noticed for about twenty-five minutes. The barracks are practically deserted, as the greater part of the police force here are scouring the country in search of the fugitive.

ALL TELL THE SAME STORY

W. J. Kennedy, professor of animal husbandry and vice-director of the experiment station, Iowa Agricultural College, was a member of the delegation of American Agricultural editors to Western Canada several weeks ago. In a report of his trip, he says of the Edmonton district, "The Edmonton district impressed me as being especially well adapted to mixed farming. The best fields of oats which I have seen for many years are located in this district. I was highly pleased with the quality of the stock which came under my observation. The horses are much above the average to be found in the older settled districts. The cattle were good, but not numerous enough. Sheep, hogs and goats should prevail in much larger numbers." In a more general spirit he goes on to say, "The courtesy of your people on every hand astounded the American visitor. Never before did we receive such kind and generous treatment. Your government, your railroads, your officials and your people are precious gems and have done much towards the development of your great country. You have a wonderful future. Your development is going to be marvellous during the next decade. A word of caution to your farmers and I am through. Good people, you have a wonderful country, your soil is very productive, but sooner or later you must adopt mixed farming. Thus, why not purchase a few good specimens of live stock now and lay the foundation for a good herd or flock? No country can continue to prosper without good live stock. Grain growing is uncertain and sure to lead to failure and hard times followed by a national set-back."
